Our History

In September 1954, Mary and Pierson "Doc" Sardou purchased the Rose Garden Restaurant from Hazel and Ernie Leyson, who were the original owners of the roadside restaurant, dating back to 1924. Upon purchasing the restaurant, they gave it a new name ~ The Viking Valhalla Restaurant ~ and theme complete with Viking weapons and a Viking Ship. Doc and Mary, along with their one-year-old son, Tom, moved from East Rochester to Bergen one month later. In June 1956, their second son, George, was born. The month of August 1957 marked the addition and grand opening of the newly built eight-lane bowling center – adding to the business name and making it The Viking Valhalla Restaurant at the Rose Garden Bowl. As the restaurant grew so, too, did the bowling leagues. Doc passed away in 1967 and Tom, then 13 years of age, took full responsibility in filling his father's shoes by helping to run the business by cooking dinners, running leagues and learning to fix bowling machines. Younger brother, George, then 10 years of age, helped by bussing tables, washing dishes and when old enough, doing some short order cooking. Today, Tom heads the business with help from Mary and Chris, his wife. September 2014 marks the 60th anniversary that the Sardou family has owned and operated their business. Over the years, the Sardou family has worked with many dedicated employees and established long-term friendships with their loyal customers - - our appreciation and thanks cannot be expressed enough.

The Viking History

The Norse Gods, or the Æsir, lived in a heaven called Asgard. This city was a center for sacrifices.

Odin was the Father, and Chief God, who ruled the City of Asgard. He was the God of Cult. Armies of men were sacrificed to him. He would stand tall in his throne in Asgard, with his two raven companions perched on his shoulders. Their names were Hugin and Munin, which means Wind and Memory. These two ravens were his informers, the scavengers of the battlefields.

Odin, the Lord of the Slain, the God of Poetry and Wisdom. He sacrificed one of his eyes for the search of knowledge.

The Valhalla is an after-life of orgy, and feasting and fighting.

Thor is the Thunder, God of Seamen and Farmers. He is the God of the Sky, Ruler of the Storms. He rode the Heaven's in a chariot, pulled by two sacred goats. He was the Lord Protector of the Universe, guarding the world with his might hammer called Mjollnir. He used his hammer to hallow weddings and marital homes.

Frey is the God of Fertility, and Controller of the Rain and Sunshine.

There were three more Gods. Sigard is the Dragon Slayer, Attila the Hun, and Ermaneric the Goth.
